

The Farmory Education Developer

Purpose: If you are passionate about providing help to those in need, developing processes to grow a nonprofit organization, and love food, The Farmory Education Developer is the perfect volunteer position for you! The Farmory will be an indoor and organic sustainable farm that uses aquaponics grow systems to thrive. The Urban Partnership Community Development Corporation, in partnership with NeighborWorks Green Bay, is searching for a dedicated volunteer with a background in Education or Health and Wellness (or related work experience). The Farmory Education Developer will research and develop workshops and lessons for low income and food insecure adults and children.

Location: This position will take place at, NeighborWorks Green Bay (437 S. Jackson St.). Upon agreement with the supervisor and the volunteer, some of the research can be conducted remotely.

Supervisor: Alex Smith, Program Director

Key Responsibilities:

- Assist in Identifying and research Green Bay low income and food insecure community needs
- Brainstorm and help write Farmory community outreach program outlines
 - Sustainable agriculture education classes/field trips
- Begin writing a “Farmory Curriculum” book
 - Create workshops for low income and food insecure adults
 - Develop “Healthy Eating” lessons for children

Qualifications:

- Internet research experience
- Education, Health and Wellness, Non-Profit background or related field
- Attention to detail
- Ability to work independently or as part of a team
- Excellent organizational skills and effectiveness in task and time management
- Expert verbal and written communication skills

Training:

- Training will be provided

Time Commitment:

- An average of 10 hours per week

The Farmory is a non-profit urban farm that utilizes innovative aquaponics technology. This indoor farm will grow job and entrepreneurial opportunities as well as increase access to locally grown food. The Farmory is driven by dedicated volunteers and supportive Green Bay area residents. It is a project of the Urban Partnership Community Development Corporation in collaboration with NeighborWorks Green Bay. If you are interested in learning more about the developing project or are interested in this volunteer position, please call Alex Smith at (920) 448-3078 or email her at alex@nwgreenbay.org. Visit our website www.farmory.org for more information.